Many of us use mobile apps every single day. There's a huge variety of apps available and each one has its own distinctive features. Twitter, for example, only allows short messages, plus images and video. Instagram makes photos (and videos) the most important thing.

What's your favourite app? What makes it different to all the other apps that are out there?

Although there are many apps out there already, there seems to always be room for a new one.

What would your dream app look like? What would make it different from all the other apps out there? Sketch the home screen below.
